

I feel that this would greatly hinder the usefulness of HDTV. If I can't record some of my favorite shows while I am not at home, the value of HDTV for me has just dropped to ZERO. How many football games and normal prime time TV shows will get flagged as copy protected, when HDTV really gets into the swing. I feel that this is a plan for large networks to just force you to watch their commercials, during high viewing times, instead of fast-forwarding through them with your VCR.